

Special edition – Living with my Brothers and Sisters

Joining SYB means an opportunity leading to a brand new future, an opportunity to become mature, and also an opportunity to make new friends. After some first contacts, I found out how lovely my classmates are. They have become my brothers and sisters.

I cherish the happy moments spent with them. We are growing up slowly; we are becoming mature gradually. SYB is a team; it is a family. We are all members of the family. We are together.

I will graduate from the SYB program in July. I am eager to work in a bakery in Shanghai so that I can learn more bakery skills as well as some management skills. One year or two later, I may come back to my hometown to open my own bakery.

--- ZHAO Xueyan, intern at Grand Mercure

In SYB, I began to know how to keep a good relationship with people around me. At the same time, I gradually became more and more mature. I owe all these to my classmates as well as to our teacher. My classmates are like my brothers and sisters. All the little things in our daily life touched me and urged me to change. As I just graduated from school, there were so many things I don't know that sometimes I deal with them improperly. But my classmates and teacher are ready to help me all the time. They would tell me where I should improve and how to do it better.

I didn't feel well at the beginning of our life in Shanghai. But our teacher taught me how to get adapted gradually, how to learn and how to communicate with others...

Everyone needs a long time to learn how to make bread because it is difficult to understand its nature. In fact, making bread is associated much with our feelings. Only if we put our hearts into it and enjoy the process can we success.

I'm grateful that I have such a good opportunity. I won't give up until the last minute.
